Would Chicago's 1968 Democratic debacle have been repeated if Miami's police hadn't developed bold crowd control measures for the 1972 Democratic and, particularly, the Republican Conventions?

While President Nixon was intoning idealism for a "peace which our children and all children of the world can enjoy for generations to come," an estimated 3,000 protestors tried to stop delegates from entering the convention hall and, in effect, cordoned off the place outside a massive police blanket.

Conventions have come to this. It is going to be difficult for either major party to pay the cost of police protection, let alone the normal costs of a national convention.

It is as if to say candidates or high office holders are targets for psychopathic assailants and whole conventions are focal points for showing massive contempt for this system.

Our guess is such demonstration is in final analysis contempt for any system.

NOW-NOW-NOW

The President and Vice-president Agnew predictably were renominated and fired salvos in exchange with Senator McGovern and V-P candidate Sargent Shriver.

The polls are 57-31 percent in favor of the incumbent and going higher since the Eagleton affair and even since Shriver accepted the Democratic nomination.

Comparisons already are being made between the standing of Barry Goldwater and Lyndon Johnson (about 59-32) at the same time eight years ago.

Considering the orchestrated unanimity of the GOP convention, the President's ventures in Peking and Moscow, the disarray of protestors in Miami and the McGovern candidacy thus far, the disparity between McGovern and Nixon may not change anymore than that of Goldwater and Johnson when LBJ carried more than 60 percent of the national electorate in 1964.

TSTI Opening Classes For Disadvantaged

The Texas State Technical Institute is opening classes for disadvantaged young people and adults 17 years of age or older, according to County Schools Supt. Max McClaren.

McClaren's office will be the representative office for any Milam County residents who wish to take advantage of the classes.

There is no tuition charge for the courses, and students can register from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. at TSTI in Waco. A high school diploma is not required for enrolling.

Classes will be offered in basic auto upholstery, communication skills, sewing machine operator, drafting, science, mathematics, social studies and others.

The classes will be small, with individual help being given the student, McClaren said.

The new program is also a work-study program, with students being able to attend class part of the day and work part time, earning money for room and board.

McClaren said high school dropouts and young people on probation can enroll in the technical school.

The county superintendent's office has brochures and information on the program and anyone who is interested in enrolling may contact the office for information.

Patrol Reports Auto Accidents

The Texas Highway Patrol investigated 20 accidents on rural highways in Milam County during the month of July according to Sgt. G. E. Simmons, Highway Patrol Supervisor of this area.

These 20 accidents have resulted in 2 deaths and 16 injured for the month of July 1972.

The total for the County this year is 9 deaths and 66 injured in 121 accidents.

Work-Study Program New For Local School

A new work-study program for Cameron students is going into effect this year, according to an announcement by Odell Biggs, coordinator for the program.

Called the Vocational Adjustment Class, the program is for students who have learning disabilities. The new program will allow the student to learn vocational skills and earn a salary at the same time, and will allow him to graduate with his class.

Biggs said the program is sponsored by the Texas Rehabilitation Commission, which finances the project.

Employees who hire the students will be paid to train the young people, and will pay the student a salary while he learns the job.

Biggs said the program is designed to teach skills to secondary students so that they can earn a living when they graduate.

"For the maximum success of the cooperative school-work program there must be full understanding, acceptance, and cooperation from the school staff, parents, and the businessmen of the community," Biggs said.

Businessmen who are interested in taking part in the program are asked to contact Biggs at Yoe High School.

CAPE KENNEDY

The cosmic X-ray experiment to be flown aboard Copernicus, the astronomy spacecraft scheduled for launch Monday, could cause a revolution in the astronomy field, according to one experimenter.

"It could open a whole new window to the universe," said Professor Robert Boyd in an interview. The scientist is the principal investigator at University College, London, which provided the experiment -- one of two main experiments carried by the orbiting astronomical observatory, named Copernicus in honor of the Polish astronomer.

"There is no doubt that the observatory is one of the most elaborate, costly, and most sophisticated vehicle ever launched," he said. "Our experiment marks the first time genuine reflecting X-ray telescopes for cosmic astronomy have ever been used on an orbiting vehicle."

"We will be able to look at the universe in a new light," he continued. "The information gathered could herald the same kind of revolution in astronomy as Copernicus."

Boyd, a veteran of over 20 years in space research, said he developed the first concept for the experiment in 1961, before anyone knew X-rays were emitted by any other objects than the sun. Since that time over about 200 sources of X-rays have been discovered in space.

"It has become evident that some of the objects are very exotic -- way out when they graduate.

Truck Damages

Calvert Stores

A jack-knifing frozen food truck damaged five buildings in Calvert Tuesday night, but the driver escaped with minor injuries.

As reported by Calvert police, the accident occurred about 7 p.m. Tuesday on Highway 6. The truck struck two buildings then burst into flames, setting the buildings on fire.

One, a barber shop, was completely gutted by the fire, and an antique shop next to it was heavily damaged.

The impact of the truck shattered plate glass and caused damage to five buildings in the area, police said.

The accident threw the driver from the truck and he sustained minor injuries.

Highway Patrolman Freddy Forchhoff of Hearne investigated the accident.

He said, "It is part of being human to want to explore and understand. Personally, it is part of the incentive to worship in the Christian sense, the heavens declare the glory of God."

Buckholts Fighting Rate Hike

Telephone service in Buckholts came under fire again when telephone subscribers met Wednesday night to discuss a rate increase proposed by Mid-State Telephone Co.

The proposed rate increases ranged from 30 percent to over 50 percent, according to Richard Crowe, president of the Buckholts State Bank, who called the meeting.

Crowe said he contacted the Price Commission, which has started an investigation of the proposed increase. The Commission has filed a possible violation against the phone company, so that the increase cannot take effect September 1 as was announced by the phone company.

The proposed increases include $5.25 to $7.50 for private lines; $4.25 to $6.50 for two-party lines; $4 to $5 for four-party lines and $8.50 to $12 for business lines.

Crowe said residents at the meeting cited the poor service that has been the rule for years in Buckholts, with complaints being ignored by the phone company. Crowe said subscribers were told by the company to phone collect, and then has refused to accept some of the calls.

He said many of the residents had just "given up" on complaining and were putting up with the poor service.

At the meeting subscribers said they would not mind the rate increase if improved service would go along with it.

Crowe said Mid-State had no filed application with the Price Commission before proposing the rate increases.

BELTON

An industrial park for Belton now seems assured -- all that is needed is money, according to the chairman of the Chamber of Commerce industrial committee. The land is located west of the North Belton cemetery and north of the Santa Fe railroad tracks.

Wanting New Skills....

Results of a survey in four Cen-Tex Counties, including Milam, show people favor by 73 percent more vocational training in public schools.

It is a gratifying result in 1972 when as early as 1961 your Herald was urging development of a technical college in the Cameron-Milam area since a number of junior and senior colleges were close at driving hand.

Texas State Technical Institute, of course, became a reality after the Air Force closed Connally Air Force Base in Waco. It has several thousand students in more than 50 technical training sequences.

The current poll was taken by Rep. Dan Kubiak in Milam, Falls, Robertson and Williamson Counties.

The poll also found 85 percent favored liability drivers insurance, a resounding 88 percent favored revision of present insurance laws and rates. It would appear this sampling might be basis for Gov. Smith going ahead with a special session, as he is considering, to act on measures to reduce the high cost of auto insurance in Texas. It is likely such percentages would derive in most other parts of the state.

Validity of such samplings is the key. And if enough of a variety of people were asked, which is surely the case here, insurance and vocational measures will be the subject of considerable debate and reform legislation in either a special session or the first session in 1973.

The answer to the changing job climate in Milam and adjacent Counties is jobs. And the public by 88 percent realizes this means vocational training for a workable, non-farm skill.

This poll substantiates the need for bedrock work in these areas, long overdue.

Summer TV Calibre....

Summer television has brought two epics to American audiences the past few weeks.

One network has presented the Russian movie of Tolstoy's "War and Peace" in four parts, while another is presenting the Italian film production of the life of Leonardo de Vinci in five. Both have English dubbed in, of course, which does detract from the effectiveness of the actors' readings.

These productions bring native authenticity to stories well known to Americans. It shows skills in documentary and epic movie are not limited to our shores.

It is cheaper to produce films in Europe or any other part of the world. This is one reason, other than television movies, that Hollywood is a slender shadow of its once gigantic celluloid self.

So two TV networks, at least, have brought some calibre to summer viewing by putting these epics on home screens.

But watch out for the regular season. It will probably be some more froth and "boom bang" from our gone-television "Tinsel Town."

Surviving Siamese Twin Richest Child In Country

RANGOON, Burma
Because she is the only surviving Siamese twin in Burma, Little Ma Nan Soe is probably the richest child in the country.

Ma Nan Soe made medical history and with it accumulated a bank account of over $20,000 -- a fortune in this poor socialist country.

She is now less than two years old and walks and talks like a normal child.

Ma Nan Soe was one of Siamese twin girls born on Feb. 20, 1971, to peasant U Sein Mya Gyi and his wife Daw Daw Pon in a village of East Bassein in the Irrawaddy delta.

The twins were joined at the chest and stomach.

Doctors attempted the first operation ever in Burma on Siamese twins and successfully separated them on July 7, 1971.

The public was touched and gifts of money, food and medicine rolled in for the two girls.

But Ma Nan Soe's twin sister Ma Nan San lived only five weeks after the operation. She died on Aug. 14, 1971, from an infection due to colic perforation.

A three-man board of trustees has been set up to look after Ma Nan Soe's bank account, which will be used to ensure her future health and education. Whatever is left will be given to her when she reaches the age of maturity or marries.

Ma Nan Soe now lives in a children's hospital in Kan-goon under the constant care of a staff nurse and three social workers. SHE will remain at the hospital until she turns five and starts school.

Dateline Austin...

Hobby Calls For Unity

By Bill Boykin

AUSTIN--Lt. Governor-elect Bill Hobby called for an era of "getting together and working together to solve Texas' problems" at his fund raising dinner in Austin.

"We have been through some of the most turbulent campaigns in our recent history -- campaigns that left some wounds," he stressed.

"We need to see to it that those wounds heal without leaving scars. State governments are resuming their roles as vital members of the federal-state partnership," Hobby added. "Our federal system cannot work unless the states and the local governments perform their functions responsibly and effectively."

Hobby told the audience of Democratic leaders that Texas has something to give the nation -- simple virtues of courtesy and neighborliness.

He talked of the "new mood now running at tidal proportions throughout the state," and said he believed the entire nation could find hope and an example here in Texas.

"Only history will record whether or not Texans invested the conscience, the commitment and the effort to create a humane and just society in our state," Hobby concluded.

LABOR DAY DEATHS

Col. Wilson E. Speir director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, estimates that statewide traffic accidents over the 78-hour Labor Day Weekend will claim 48 lives.

The Labor Day Holiday, as designated by the National Safety Council, extends from 6 p.m. Friday, September 1, to midnight Monday, September 4.

At the close of the Labor Day period last year, a DPS tabulation revealed 41 persons had died in 34 traffic accidents in the state. Late deaths pushed the toll to 43 persons killed in 36 accidents.

Speir said the DPS and local law enforcement agencies will be taking all possible steps to reduce the holiday death toll. A special "Operation Motorcade" will be in progress over the Labor Day weekend and tabulations on rural and urban fatal accidents will be reported to the news media of Texas three times daily.

As is customary on major holidays, says Speir, all available highway patrolmen will be placed on duty throughout the state. They will make full use of radar and breath testing instruments in an effort to curtail the major cause of fatal accidents -- excessive speed and drunk driving.

Joining law enforcement officers in the effort to reduce loss of lives during the holiday period will be about 500 Texas National Guardsmen who will operate jeep patrols to assist motorists and to ride partners with DPS patrolmen.

The guardsmen, all volunteers, will concentrate their efforts in 107 Texas counties in far east, central and south Texas.

Speaking of "Operation

Motorcade", Colonel Speir said, "These educational and enforcement programs will have an impact, but a great deal of the responsibility for accident reduction rests in the hands of individual Texans."

"I am appealing to all our citizens to join with us in saving lives by 'Driving Friendly', both during the holiday and throughout the remainder of the year," the DPS director said.

OLD PHILOSOPHER

Dear editor:

You may not believe this but I've found a man out here who claims he has read every word in both the Democratic and Republican platforms, and I was thinking, don't you think we ought to capture him and exhibit him at a fair or some place?

I suppose the people who struggle for long hours writing a platform and hunting for words with the proper blur must read it, at least the planks they had a hand in producing, but to find a voter who has read one all the way through, not to mention two, is as rare as finding a politician who's not in favor of cutting taxes while he's raising them.

As far as I can tell, a platform, six months after it's adopted, is about as useful a document as the minutes of a year-before-last's P.T.A. meeting.

At nearly every national convention you're always hearing about floor fights over the platform, with television reporters interviewing everybody right and left, but it's usually about like arguing with the referee in a football game.

You might say that adopting a platform is like the pre-game ceremonies at a professional football game when the captains of both teams walk out to the middle of the field for the coin toss and the referee indicates who gets to receive, when actually it was tossed and the receiving side selected an hour earlier when the two teams were still in the dressing room.

I asked this man who'd read both platforms if he'd made up his mind how he's going to vote and he said things are still a little cloudy and it's still a long time till November. Asked me if I had any good books he could borrow.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Highway Spans Canada

A ribbon of road runs down Signal Hill on the Newfoundland coast. It ends almost 5,000 miles to the west at the Pacific. In between, it is Main Street Canada.

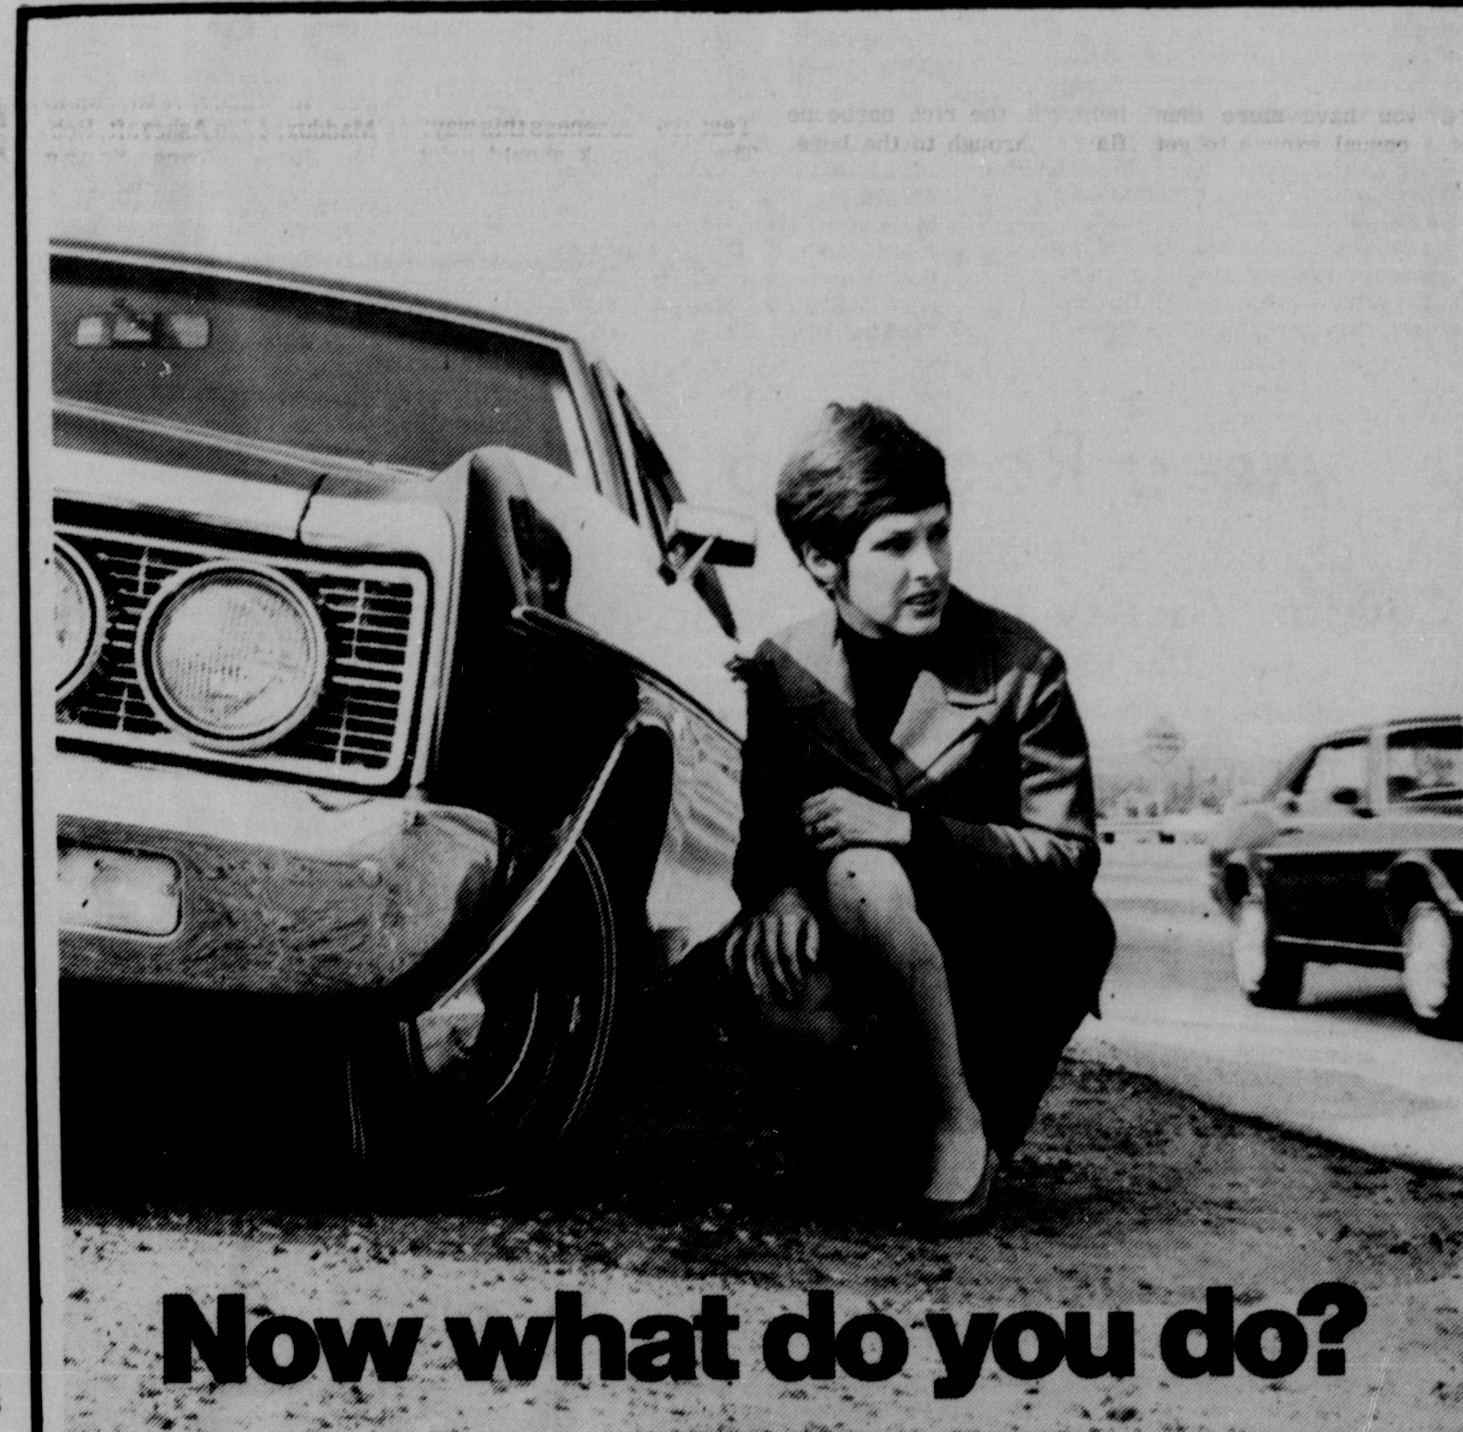

The Trans-Canada highway is an asphalt umbilical cord joining 10 provinces physically and economically.

The motel keeper in Cap St. Ignace, Quebec, and the gas station operator in Moosemin, Saskatchewan, depend on the road to bring business to their doors. Youngsters hitchhike on it in summer. Holiday-makers are guided by it. The big trucks roar over it 24 hours a day.

A peacetime boon, the highway was born in war. World War II emphasized the need for an all-weather road of high standard linking all 10 provinces and eliminating the physical barriers on a coast-to-coast route.

It was authorized under 1949 federal legislation by which the central government and the provinces entered into an agreement for its construction. Quebec was the last province to negotiate a shared-cost agreement, in 1960.

Originally, the estimated cost was around $300 million. The actual cost is calculated at about $3 billion.

First of all, cheer up. You've done everything right so far. Your tire went flat and you drove on until you could pull completely off the road. Oh, you probably ruined the tire. But you also may have saved your life.

Our safety experts have learned some other things that can help a lady in distress.

Never stop where your car is exposed to on-coming traffic. Keep driving until you find a safe spot on the right side of the road. When help isn't immediately available, chances are it won't be long before a police officer comes to your aid. To help him see your problem -- and to warn other motorists -- turn on your parking lights or emergency flashers and raise your hood or tie a white handkerchief to your radio antenna.

Then, it's best to place road flares 100 and 200 feet to the rear. In fast traffic, stand well off to the side and about 15 feet to the rear of your car. In light traffic or where you are safely away from on-coming traffic, wait inside your car with the doors locked. Above all, stay where you are. Accepting a ride can make a big problem out of a very minor one.

It's all good advice from your new car dealer. And the people waiting at home would agree with us.

MISS SANDY WALKER

August Dubbed Turkey Time

August is National Barbecue Month, the cookout season and 'Summer Turkey Time.'

So you have more than just a casual excuse to get the grill heating for a family barbecue.

The many sizes of turkeys marketed these days makes this bird an ideal barbecue treat. You'll probably want to select turkeys for the outdoor grill in a weight range of about 4 to 6 pounds. Split the birds in halves or quarters and start the cooking skin-side-up on the grill.

Slow cooking and frequent basting with a good sauce help put the rich barbecue flavor through to the bone. For basting, a thick sauce should be diluted with about three parts of water to give it a thin consistency.

Avoid too hot a fire, as the bird will scorch or cook on the outside before it is done near the bone. The grill should be at least 14 inches from the heat source. Turn the pieces from time to time to insure even cooking.

Better allow from 2 to 2 1/2 hours of cooking time. Test the doneness this way: The drumstick should twist readily out of thigh joint or wing out of shoulder joint.

Learning About Children Via 'Play Dough'

COLLEGE STATION What better way to learn more about your child than with play dough?

According to Jane Fleischer, family life education specialist of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, play dough acts as a channel of exploring, experimenting, creating and expressing deep feelings for children two to six years old.

"The dough stimulates different kinds of thinking," Miss Fleischer continued. "Notice the child's comments and exclamations as he handles it."

As an exercise for development, the Texas A&M University specialist pointed out that play dough developes large and small muscles as well as eye-hand coordination. It also provides sensory experiences. "As an outlet for emotional release," she added, "it becomes an acceptable means of working off anger and other problems. As the child pounds and squeezes it, he drains off his angry feelings and makes them more manageable."

To make your own play dough combine one-half cup flour, one - half cup salt, three teaspoons alum and enough water to hold together. Mix as for dough and bread to the consistency of clay.

Store the dough in a light weight plastic container. Wrap it in a wet towel and then snugly fasten the airtight cover.

"Play dough is easy to make, inexpensive and fun to play with. But most important," the specialist noted, "it's an effective stimulant for your child's active play."

Country Banks Facing Changes

COLLEGE STATION — The country bank, one of the least remembered but most essential aspects of agriculture, is facing many changes in its effort to keep up with farming, according to two Texas Agricultural Experiment Station economists.

Changes in the structure and organization of farms, coupled with changes in patterns and amounts of savings, are creating problems for many commercial banks, the leading lender to agriculture, Dr. John A. Hopkin and Dr. Peter J. Barry said.

The finance specialists with the Department of Agricultural Economics and Rural Sociology at Texas A&M University believe that farm structure is being affected by three different movements. The expansion of part-time farming, inclusion of low income farmers in some kind of welfare program, and the continued growth of larger commercial farms means changes in the financial situation of agriculture. The consolidation of commercial farms and growth in capital investment suggests that future financing needs in agriculture will be increased substantially, Hopkin and Barry said. Some predictions indicate that the rate of annual farm debt will more than double by 1980. Average total debt for the large scale commercial farm could exceed $600,000 while farms with gross sales between $40,000 and $100,000 might average about $130,000. Farmers turn to the commercial bank to help them meet these debt capital needs, Hopkin and Barry said, but banks in some areas are steadily becoming unable to supply the needed amounts of money. Most of the nation's saving is done in small amounts in urban area banks, making it difficult for country banks to obtain capital to make loans. In addition to being caught between the farmer's demand for loans and a lack of funds, the country bank is also bound by lending restrictions. Limits on the size of individual bank loans are held to specified percentages of the bank's capital and surplus. Also, loan terms for purchase of depreciable farm equipment are less than adequate. This is because farm equipment is becoming so specialized and so expensive that longer periods of time are needed to repay the loans, point out the researchers. The changing structure of agriculture, such as farm corporations and partnerships rather than the traditional sole proprietorship, are also affecting farm financing by opening up alternative sources of capital to some producers. Notwithstanding the emerging problems, many rural bankers are doing an outstanding job in attempting to attract funds into their area and in meeting the financing needs of their farm customers, noted Hopkin and Barry.

BUSINESS REVIEW

I. T. Gilbert Is A Top Salesman For Mutual Of Omaha

You win the Master Builders Club award by top salesmanship and service with Mutual of Omaha.

That is what Ivey T. Gilbert, Milam County representative of the famous insurance company, delivers.

He is one of Mutual of Omaha's top 12 salesmen in the country, cited January, 1970, as a member of the Master Builders Club of Mutual of Omaha Insurance and its affiliate, United Benefit Life Insurance Company.

So Gilbert's presentation is timely. And a Mutual of Omaha policy pays and pays, because, he points out of one clause.

He won similar recognition in a plaque presented in January, 1968.

Gilbert is a sales and service representative for Milam County, a responsibility he has held for five years. He has a total of 13 years experience in the insurance sales field.

Four times a year he joins with other representatives of Mutual of Omaha in study course and seminars to update information on today's service needs for both companies and what other companies are offering.

Gilbert cites one policyholder's experience in which the man received $15,000 for one disability for recurring health problems due to the one deficiency.

It is a recurrence clause very few health and accident companies provide which can be used over and over and over for the same disability.

Born in Buckholts, Gilbert graduated from Sharp High School before it was consolidated about 15 years ago. He is married, and he and his wife Pat have three children: Ronald, 16; Brenda, 13; and Donna, 10. The Gilberts live on West 22nd Street.

We salute you for outstanding achievements during the past year. The exceptional job you have done in offering the best in professional insurance counseling and service to folks in this area has earned you membership in the coveted Presidents Club -- national symbol of excellence.

Why not ask this award-winning to advise you on your personal insurance needs, too? He'll be happy to do so without cost or obligation. Call him today.

Hefner Launches New Magazine

By Leonard Santorelli

NEW YORK Playboy, which parlayed big bosoms into a giant commercial enterprise, has launched a new "girlie" magazine -- to fill the public demand for more explicit eroticism.

Entitled "Oui", and co-published by a French magazine, the new glossy displays naked women, and a centerfold of a nude couple, "plus," according to a press release detailing future pleasures, "bikes, leather, Nazis, flesh, bestiality."

Hugh Hefner, who created Playboy's "clean-cut" bare look and built up a money-spinning network of Bunny clubs, has launched the magazine at a time when Playboy's own monthly sales have reached a new high of 6.5 million. Why? Competition from Britain may provide the clue.

Another explanation may be that, Playboy has become an establishment institution in an era of sexual freedom and is unable to compete in the fierce struggle for the younger readers.

The British magazine "Penthouse," with its greater emphasis on sexuality, claims its circulation in the United States has leaped from 300,000 when it started here in 1969, to 1.5 million currently, and has ordered a printing of 2.5 million in September.

Penthouse editorial director, Jim Good, who said he was artistic director for Playboy from 1966-70, said today: "The fifties look of the Playboy playmate doesn't have much attraction for the young American today."

And when asked about Playboy's growing circulation, he said: "Decay in a magazine may take years to manifest itself."

A spokesman for Playboy dismissed the suggestion that the rot had set in with Playboy and that the new magazine was an attempt to cash in on the Penthouse readership, by copying it.

"Playboy is fabulously successful. This magazine is aimed towards the 18 to 28-year-olds. Playboy readers go up to 34-years-old."

London's Buses Match Rainbow

By Paul Majendie

LONDON bus which was done in Edinburgh.

A London Transport official explained with the blandest of smiles "We didn't have any tartan paint in London."

But nowadays visitors to the capital are in for a few multi-colored surprises -- six of the city's buses have been converted into mobile advertising posters and daubed all over with every color of the rainbow.

The idea originated in the boardroom of a paint company which was looking for a new gimmick to help advertise its product.

The company approached London Transport, the authority which runs the city's bus fleet, and in 1969 the first technicolor bus took to the streets of London displaying the changing of guards at Buckingham Palace plus a message from the paint firm.

Both buyer and seller were happy with the results. Ridership on the "paint bus" was five to 10 per cent above those of an ordinary bus on the same route.

Other firms were quick to see the commercial possibilities of a display that moved, hooted and was seen by a lot of people every day.

But London Transport was also astute enough to limit the number in action. As one official explained "The novelty value behind them is considerable but we don't want to have a mass of them on the road."

Now Londoners are treated to such spectacles as a tartan extravaganza tempting them to drink a particular brand of beer and also the biggest collection of mouth-wateringly painted ice creams on wheels.

Another from a firm of bookmakers shows jockeys perched with their bottoms askew on galloping race horses.

The advertisers are charged on a sliding scale for the chance to display their wares so dramatically. For a minimum three-month period the rent is $7,500 and for a year it costs $18,750.

Designs are subject to London Transport's approval and the cost of painting the buses and later restoring them to their pristine red is paid by the advertiser.

The buses are usually painted in London though one exception was the tartan beer

Britisher Sails Arctic

ANCHORAGE

Ice remaining late in the summer is giving Britisher Colin Irwin a tarry start on his second summer's continued voyage through the Northwest Passage.

The 25-year-old sailor from Bournemouth, England, is trying to make it alone through the famous Arctic waterway in an 18-foot sailboat. If he succeeds he will be the first ever to travel solo just by sail with no auxiliary engine.

Irwin made it to Cambridge Bay, 900 miles east of the Alaska-Canada border before freeze-up last summer and lived with Eskimos during the winter. In a radio-phone conversation with Charles Towell of BP Alaska Inc. in Anchorage, Irwin said he probably would not be able to sail more than another 300 miles east this summer before getting locked in again by ice.

The Alaskan subsidiary of British Petroleum has assisted Irwin with food, Arctic clothing and communications from time to time since the young man began his epic voyage in June 1971.

A 500-pound package of dried food is being sent by air freight to Irwin to provision him for his summer dash eastward.

Irwin started his trip at Galena, a small village on the Yukon River, in his junk-rigged sailboat "Endeavour." He made excellent progress eastward, rounding the Alaskan coastline, stopping at Barrow and Prudhoe Bay, into Canada before he hit really bad ice conditions last year.

During the winter he traveled more than a thousand miles by dog team exploring the Canadian Arctic. He learned Eskimo methods of survival, living on meat and his Eskimo companions were able to shoot.

"This summer I aim to sail to the limit, as I know if I get caught in the ice

I shall be able to survive with last winter's experiences behind me," Irwin told Towell. "If the boat gets stopped by ice as winter comes on, I'll wait for things to really freeze up and then walk to the nearest village."

Winter temperatures in the area vary from minus 35 to minus 50 degrees Fahrenheit so "bad weather" could mean intense cold plus wind and blizzard conditions which can reduce visibility to zero and last several days.

ADDICTS INCREASE IN YUGOSLAVIA

By Miodrag Klun
Reuter Correspondent

BELGRADE

The rising number of drug addicts in Yugoslavia is causing increasing concern among police and health authorities of this socialist state.

Robbery and deaths because of narcotics are reported more frequently.

Two years ago there were an estimated 200 addicts in Belgrade. Now some unofficial estimates put the figure at 10,000.

In June a 21-year-old Belgrade girl died in a hospital from the effects of drug taking, bringing the known number of similar deaths in the past two years to three.

The girl belonged to a gang of addicts who broke into pharmacies in search of drugs. She had been arrested along with members of three gangs who had been raiding drug stores up and down the country over the past few months.

They stole mainly morphine and similar narcotics which cost up to six dollars an ampule on the Yugoslav black market.

AGNES CAUSES OIL SPILL IN PENNSYLVANIA

By Bill Wingell

PHILADELPHIA

The oil is everywhere. It covers trees, grass, shrubs and buildings. For a distance of 16 miles, the land along the Schuylkill River north of here is a dying, black hell.

Tropical Storm Agnes caused tremendous devastation in Pennsylvania and other states, but perhaps her worst environmental blow was an enormous oil spill that has coated a section of the Schuylkill River basin with thick black sludge.

Officials of the U. S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) call it the worst oil spill in recent times.

Working in bucket brigades to clean up the mess were 400 Coast Guardsmen and EPA laborers.

Aided by a mule named Soul Music and a horse called Azarc the workers scooped up buckets full of oil sludge and debris. They dumped them into trucks and railroad hopper cars.

EPA spokesmen say it will take at least another two months to complete the cleanup.

The spill occurred two weeks ago when flood waters swept between six and eight million gallons of oil sludge from the storage lagoons of the Berks Associates oil reclamation plant on the bank of the Schuylkill near Douglassville, about 35 miles above Philadelphia. The polluting material was residue from recycled crankcase oil.

THE LONELY HEART

Rustlers Worry Cowboys

By Albert Clark

BUENOS AIRES

A lone cowboy's horse whinnies nervously as the sun sets over the mountains in the west and the long night watch for cattle rustlers begins.

In a nearby shack the horseman's wife and children light their kerosene lamps with apprehension in case the gangsters strike under cover of darkness, six-guns blazing.

This is no setting for a wild west film about Texas in the last century -- it is real life. The year is 1972, and the scene is the wild west of Argentina.

For in this huge fertile country of grassy plains, rocky mountains, cactus-clothed hillsides and some 50 million head of beef cattle, rustlers still operate.

All the ingredients of the traditional western film are here -- only the place names are different: for the prairie read La Pampa, for the Rockies read the Andes, for bandits read bandidos.

The men who stand watch over the herds in the western province of Mendoza, 600 miles from Buenos Aires, are seriously worried by the gangsters.

So much so that 25 of them traveled to the city of San Rafael, in the south of the province, to ask a judge to protect them and their families in outlying districts.

The cowboys -- "puesteros" in Spanish -- asked for police guards against a gang of bandits which has been terrorizing them for years.

They insisted the gang, known locally as the Canale brothers, not only stole cattle but also threatened to kill cowboys who called in police and to kidnap their relatives.

Three Canale brothers are already in jail, leaving only one of them, considered the most dangerous, on the run.

But the puesteros are afraid that the 14 sons of the brothers will set out to avenge the capture.

As if to confirm fears of an impending blood feud, one of the sons, still a teenager, has already been arrested in a police raid on the bandits.

The cowboys also claim the Canale gang has forced some of them to leave their lonely homes under threats of violence and has taken over their homesteads.

"Either they go or we go," one of the delegation was reported to have told judge Aldo Yunes. The judge told them he would send help next time they reported an attack by the bandits.

The cowboys have waited a long time without reporting the trouble, frightened on their lonely mounted vigil that the bandits will come out of the darkness again and attack their families.

But now they have had enough and, according to the latest report, they have offered the police horses, trucks and gasoline to use if they come and "clean up the territory."

A pollution-free process for removing magnesium from aluminum scrap has been placed on the market by Aluminum Company of America, it was revealed by Fred Bergeron, Rockdale Works manager.

The process, developed by Alcoa Research Laboratories to eliminate chlorine fumes customarily associated with the demagging procedure, results in lower operating costs and a salable by-product - anhydrous magnesium chloride.

Bergeron said the demagging process was developed to meet the industry's need for reducing magnesium content in remelted scrap.

"Previous chlorine fluxing procedures were inefficient and created either air or water pollution problems," he said.

"We began by attacking a pollution problem," he said, "and came up with a process which solves the problem. In addition, the process cuts costs and reduces melt losses while retaining satisfactory metallurgical properties of the processed scrap."

The development is especially significant in view of widespread efforts to recycle aluminum beverage cans, in which magnesium

El Paso Man Indicted On Tax Count

Rodolfo R. Narvaez, age 42, 1011 South Santa Fe, El Paso, was indicted by a Federal Grand Jury meeting in El Paso, which charged him with 19 counts of income tax law violations. Narvaez was one of a group of return preparers who were arrested on April 10, 1972, by Special Agents of the Internal Revenue Service in a major crackdown by IRS on unethical return preparers.

The indictment charges Narvaez with aiding and assisting in the preparation of 19 false returns for 17 taxpayers living in the El Paso area. The indictment charges that Narvaez prepared false income tax returns for each of these clients by claiming false itemized or business deductions.

R. L. Phinney, District Director of Internal Revenue for southern Texas, said that any person who engages in the business of preparing false income tax returns for his clients (such as claiming false deductions and/or exemptions without the client's knowledge or consent) could be subject to arrest by Special Agents of the Internal Revenue Service and charged with the felony offense of aiding and assisting in the preparation of false income tax returns.

Phinney said that a person convicted of this Federal offense is subject to a maximum fine of not more than $5,000; imprisonment for not more than three years; or both, together with the cost of prosecution for each false income tax return prepared and filed with the Internal Revenue Service.

Rangers Welcome Visitors

The welcome mat is out at the Rangers' Arlington Stadium to all visitors, and the opportunity to make the trip to that handsome, cozy, and comfortable stadium was never more favorable.

When the team returns Friday, September 1, after a ten-game road trip, two week-end series plus a Labor Day Spectacular are on tap -- all conducive to a trip to Arlington Stadium.

Five major promotions are included with the upcoming series against Milwaukee, Kansas City, Minnesota, and Oakland.

The Sunday games start at 1:30 p.m., all others at 7:30 p.m.

The promotional special events are:

Saturday, Sept. 2, vs. Milwaukee: The 7-Eleven Stores will sponsor free pantyhose to women.

Sunday, Sept. 3, a 1:30 p.m. game, free Texas Rangers caps to youngsters.

Monday, Sept. 4, fireworks spectacular follows the game with Kansas City.

Saturday, Sept. 9, vs. Oakland A's, a second free pantyhose nite for the women.

Sunday, Sept. 10, another 1:30 p.m. game and free Texas Rangers T-Shirts for the youngsters.

boys team definitely next year and I could make the sixth spot if I'm lucky."

Trying out for the men's team would be fine, she says, "even if I only made eighth or ninth man it would be worth it just practicing with them. I would improve my game."

The university had a women's team for the first time last season and Miss Haas made the quarter-finals of the National Womens Intercollegiate Championships.

This summer she was selected for Junior Wightman Cup squad. In competition, she reached the semifinals in the Western Pennsylvania Championships, the quarter-finals in the Southern Championships, the finals in the South Carolina Open and quarter-final of the National Amateur Clay Courts Championship.

Miss Haas says she has changed her style this summer. "I'm not staying back any more against Californians with their big serves. I've improved. I've learned a net game from them. They used to call me the pusher. Then they started saying, look, the pusher is coming to the net. I come to the net as much as they do now."

University of Florida tennis coach Dale Lewis "told me I could come out (for the boys team) last year," Miss Haas said, "but the boys and girls tryouts were at the same time so I played it safe. Now if it doesn't turn out, I have the women's team to fall back on."

"He's got to let me play, or people will hear about it," she said.

On August 5, 1945 the atomic bomb was dropped on Hiroshima from the B-29 Enola Gay, under command of Col. Paul W. Tibbets Jr.

Sports Murray-go-Round

By Tom Murray

THE PROS ON KEITHLEY: Well, this is the year. The season Alvin's Gary Keithley was seeking when he departed Darrell Royal's then National Championship U Texas Longhorns for a "Team that throws the ball." The magnificently - talented 6-3, 210 pound quarterback is now a senior at Texas' El Paso Branch, UTEP, and Bobby Dobbs 'oes throw a pass, or two. Gary's last 'flang' at college football should be interesting. Except that true Keithley fans are torn. They pull for him at El Paso but cannot help wondering just how good he could have made the 1972 Longhorns. Strange, but do you realize that in 1969 when the Aggies signed Smiley's Best Brothers, that Bruce was considered a sure-fire future All-American line-man. And, Brother Boice was not. Well, Bruce never made it, and Boice is one of the country's most superb defensive line types.

SWC Plays Rerun In New Movie

Twenty-five years of Southwest Conference football have been packed into an action-filled half-hour film which will be premiered on 28 television stations throughout the Southwest the nights of Sept. 5-9.

Following the TV premieres, the 16 mm film will be available for showings to groups and organizations through the Humble Oil Film library.

Opening with the Doak Walker (SMU) and Bobby Layne (Texas) post World War II era, the 28-minute movie features outstanding players, teams and games of 1947-71.

Organizations or groups can obtain the film on free loan to show at meetings by writing to Humble Oil & Refining Co. at 3400 Southland Center, Dallas, Tex. 75201.

Think Brazosport hasn't make an impression on Southwest Collegiate football? Gene Shannon Houston U's first real, honest-to-goodness All-American, King Hill, the '57 Rice All-American QB and Danny Rhodes, Arkansas' current wrecker at linebacker, all grew up there at the mouth of the Brazos. Shannon, the Super-charged Cougar Ball-carrier of the early fifties, is New London High Principal while most know that Hill is the Oiler Super Scout. Like Shannon, another Velasco lad to leave Brazosport High and make his SWC mark, was the Aggies' Charlie Royalty, a Don Burrisk-type speedster who still holds some Texas A&M punt return records. In fact, Royalty and Shannon - who lived three blocks apart - were feared ball-carriers on Herbert Hopper's Super Exporter teams in 1945 and 46. Royalty is a Dow Chemical executive in his home town. One National Football magazine calls Rhodes, only a junior, "The best linebacker Frank Broyles ever had."

SPEC SPEAKS FIRST PERSON: Have you noticed? That Astro GM Spec Richardson never says, "We," in reference to the ball club. It is always "I," as in "I let Harry Walker make out the lineup. Otherwise, I don't need him." ... Couldn't have happened to a better fellow! Pete Sultis, Baytown Athletic Director, recently joined those other Baytown immortals - Dan Stallworth and Beverly Rockhold - in the Texas High School Coaches Association Hall of Fame. Pete Sultis not only is one of the most superb football teachers we have ever observed. God just simply has not sent along a better human being.

SMU's Hayden Fry has been known to point a finger at SWC Coaching brethren and cluck, while the press scurried to dig a story on some recruiting irregularity. Now, it seems, they're telling stories on Fry. ... Can you imagine the pressure Frank Broyles' Arkansas Razorbacks will be able to put on a defense when Joe Ferguson slides down the line, sticking the ball in Marsh White's belly, jerking it back, only to offer a pitch to Jon Richardson or Dickey Morton while Mike Reppond, Jim Hodge or Reggie Craig hit the open pass routes?
